

How Organized Mothers Are Making an Impact

A phenomenon in environmental activism in recent years has been the emergence of grassroots organizations “powered by the voices of mothers, dedicated to protecting children in global communities,” as one group, The Mothers Project, describes itself. The Mothers Project, founded and headed by Angela Monti Fox, is based in New York City and global in scope.