

China's Moon Rover Already In Trouble

China's first lunar rover successfully landed on the moon in December, but a malfunction is already jeopardizing its mission. China's Jade Rabbit moon rover experienced a "mechanical control abnormality" according to state media said on Saturday, in what appears to be a setback for a landmark mission in the country's ambitious space program