

Horoscopes Monday 13th June 2016

As Neptune turns retrograde we might find that clarity begins to dawn, enabling us to perceive the truth about a key situation.

Indeed, if we have been in denial, we could become quite disillusioned. Yet, this may be a necessary step in the process of straightening things out. For your FREE Daily Horoscope Monday 12th June 2016 please see below...

Horoscopes Monday 13th June 2016

Aries 21 March – 20 April

As Neptune goes into its five and a half month reverse, it may be time to act on recent insights, especially if it seems you've lost control in key areas of your life. Indeed, with the Saturn Neptune angle peaking at the end of the week it can be vital not to become too complacent, but to challenge assumptions that may have tripped you up or caused you to hold back.

Taurus 21 April – 21 May

The Libra Moon in your sector of well-being can put you in touch with needs you may have ignored due to a busy schedule. Its link to Mercury might be a call to invest in healthier foods or information that could help you feel more balanced or at peace with the world. If doing so also boosts your energy levels then you can give yourself an advantage.

Gemini 22 May – 21 June

With Neptune going backwards from today in the topmost sector of your chart, you may be very aware of any sacrifices you have made recently and whether they have been worth it. The days ahead may be particularly telling in this regard, as the enervating Saturn Neptune square comes to a head. This could coincide with a desire to focus on your needs and plans for change.

Cancer 22 June – 23 July

As Mars continues to spin backwards in your sector of leisure and romance, it's very possible that a friendship or even a budding affair may have seemed more off than on lately, making it hard to keep the continuity going. Sporadic interaction might only further the impression that momentum has been lost. Even so, with patience, the end of the month could see progress.

Leo 24 July – 23 August

It may be helpful if you don't set your sights too high over the days ahead Leo, as the present astrological picture suggests they might need adjusting to a more realistic level anyway. This might not be the first time over the past year that you've had to modify your plans. However, your horoscope suggests that in doing so you could find you do best and are most successful when you're true to yourself.

Virgo 24 August – 23 September

As the planet Neptune enters its annual rewind, this could have an effect on your relationships, especially regarding those people you interact with daily. It might even be worthwhile putting key decisions on hold so as to better gauge their reactions, which may be fluctuating. Even so, by focusing on what really works for you, your efforts may soon enough bear fruit.

Libra 24 September – 23 October

With Venus your ruler, involved in an intoxicating blend of energies, you may be at your happiest when you can roam free and do as you will. Even so, this can be a reaction to a situation that has taken a lot out of you and that may not be easy to break away from. Over coming days Libra, you may reach a point where you realise that something has to change.

Scorpio 24 October – 22 November

The Libra Moon in a cloistered area of your chart and its link to the planet of talk and thought can align you with your feelings, allowing you to read between the lines regarding someone close. It is this degree of subtlety that could help unravel a misunderstanding or enable you to compromise. And, it may gift you with further insights into what makes them tick.

Sagittarius 23 November – 21 December

Over this week the connection between Saturn and Neptune comes to a head for the second time over the past year. Indeed, with Neptune also slamming on the astral brakes from now this can be an opportunity to gain control of a situation that had seemed confusing. As a result, key issues that might have been ongoing can be dealt with, and allow you to move on.

Capricorn 22 December – 20 January

The current backdrop suggests you may have an opportunity to make an impression on someone who holds the balance of power. It may be fleeting, but if you can grasp the chance while you have it and come out with the right words or a nifty display of a skill or talent, your efforts might be noticed. Because of this you could be much better placed to get what you want.

Aquarius 21 January – 19 February

Even if a certain person appeared uncooperative yesterday, they may well change their tune over the next day or so. With Venus connecting to the Sun and Uranus, your ruler, they may show a very different side to their nature that is pleasantly surprising. Nevertheless, where your social life is concerned, you could be keen to firm up your boundaries somewhat.

Pisces 20 February – 20 March

Over coming days, you may become aware of your successes as well as any failures. However, with Neptune your personal planet now regressing and aligning with Saturn later in the week, you could have a tendency to judge yourself more harshly than is necessary. Instead, consider setting the bar lower as by doing so you might give yourself more chance to shine.
