

Horoscopes Tuesday 28th November 2017

As talkative Mercury aligns with sobering Saturn we may find ourselves in a focused mood, which can be excellent for completing detailed tasks.

In addition, we might find business affairs, planning and organization also do well under this practical transit. For your FREE Daily Horoscope Tuesday 28th November 2017 please see below...

Horoscopes Tuesday 28th November 2017

Aries 21 March – 20 April

It may be tempting to over think certain ideas Aries, and this can slow down a process that could be ready to happen. As interactive Mercury connects with sobering Saturn in your sector of exploration, you may be a little nervous of taking the next step and could seek information to back-up your ideas. In the end though, you might be talked into making that move, and just do it.

Taurus 21 April – 21 May

If you can't decide one way or another what your next steps should be, then it may be because you are trying to work things out logically. And this would seem the natural thing to do, given that what you are considering may require an understanding of the facts. Nevertheless, someone unconnected to the situation may have some wise words for you that can back up your instincts.

Gemini 22 May – 21 June

Although you may be keen for a certain outcome to occur, this might not necessarily be best for you or another. As the week progresses, other influences will have a bearing on the situation, including the fact that Mercury, your guide planet, will enter its rewind phase later in the week. Therefore, it may be helpful to allow things to take their natural course, at least for now Gemini.

Cancer 22 June – 23 July

If there are important tasks to be completed, then the cosmos encourages you to get on with them right away. The reason for this is that over the days ahead life can take a more distracting turn, and events can show up which make it more difficult for you to complete everything on time. Your horoscope suggests putting in the effort now Cancer, means you'll find it easier to take everything in your stride.

Leo 24 July – 23 August

Much as you could want to push forward, the stellar backdrop suggests that you may feel as though things have come to a halt. And this phase could continue over the days ahead as interactive Mercury slows down prior to turning retrograde over the coming weekend. With the possibility of further distractions, it can be easier not to try too hard, but to go with the flow.

Virgo 24 August – 23 September

If a family issue has dominated your attention, then making any headway with this may have proved more difficult than you hoped. However, this might be because the current perspective needs to change. The coming days might well see this happening, as key developments could mean you begin to regard this matter as less important, and not worth getting anxious about.

Libra 24 September – 23 October

If communication with someone seems to be at a standstill, then try not to let this bother you, as there are factors coming into play over the days ahead that might have a direct bearing on this issue. New information could come to light Libra, perhaps revealing an entirely different perspective on an association. And once it does, a positive discussion can swiftly follow.

Scorpio 24 October – 22 November

You could experience mixed ideas about a purchase and may perhaps wonder if it was worth the expense or not. As lively Mercury prepares to enter its retro phase over coming days though, you could even decide to get your money back. This may be no bad thing Scorpio, as something better might come along, or you may realize you don't really need it after all and so save your money.

Sagittarius 23 November – 21 December

While you may feel responsible for getting certain ideas and projects off the ground, developing influences suggest that things might not pan out right away, despite your efforts. The coming days can bring startling new perspectives into the mix and these could easily alter your outlook. As a result, the situation may change so that what you had planned no longer seems so urgent Archer.

Capricorn 22 December – 20 January

While you may be forging ahead with a key idea, the coming days suggest that matters on the domestic front could have a bearing on your plans. Indeed, you might need to turn your attention to family affairs and handle whatever comes up. Yet such an intervention can be quite timely, in that a delay might connect you with information or fresh opportunities to move boldly forward.

Aquarius 21 January – 19 February

This can be an interesting time as ideas or decisions which seemed set in stone may unravel, and this might be down to a blend of influences that could get stronger over coming days. Keeping an open mind may be very helpful as your plans could take a new route entirely, and one that might work out better for you, and that paves the way for greater opportunities over coming weeks.

Pisces 20 February – 20 March

Although you may have already made a key decision Pisces, there are forces at work that could encourage you to rethink this matter. It is also possible that you could have no choice as circumstances can change, and you may need to adopt a new strategy. This could be a good thing though, as it can open up the way for exciting new developments that may suit you much better.
