Being entirely dependent on school learning is not a great idea anymore. Students of grade 1 are more inclined towards playing and less conscious about their studies, which is obvious. That is why a little push from parents can help the kids do wonders.

As a parent, you need to be more attentive to your kids' learning requirements. You need to have an understanding of what they will learn in Grade 1 and accordingly help them with the required resources. You need to spend some time with your little one regularly (if possible) and lead them in getting a good grip of the subjects and concepts in them.

Why should your kid focus on English subject?

It is evident that English has become a language that is known worldwide. Being good at written and spoken English is now a prerequisite for getting into top-notch jobs. It will not be an exaggeration to say that these days, one's smartness is directly proportional to one's hold of English!

Importance of English is expected to only rise in the future. This makes it all the more necessary to have a sound grip on all the aspects of the language.

If an interest is instilled in kids in their formative years of learning, they will themselves become proficient in the language without much of an explicit push in the later years.
