

Creation vs Evolution Debate Between Bill Nye and Ken Ham Summed Up In Two Very Telling Answers

On Tuesday evening more than 3 million people tuned in to watch 'Science Guy' Bill Nye debate Ken Ham, founder of the biblically literalist Creation Museum on the topic 'Is creation a viable model of origins?' Mr. Ham believes that the world was created over a six 24-hour-day period about 6,000 years ago, and that all living land animals today are descended from those taken aboard Noah's Ark some 4,500 years ago. Nye challenged Ham's literal biblical view on several fronts, pointing out that radioisotopic and ice core data shows that the Earth has been around for far longer than the 6,000 years that Ham says it is, as does our ability to view stars that are more than 6,000 light years away. Nye also pointed out that Noah's Ark, were it constructed the way the Bible says it was, wouldn't actually stay afloat."