A once-healthy respiratory therapist who fought COVID on the front lines and then lined up for his COVID shots is now asking people who criticize vaccine-hesitant people to stand down.

Since he took his shots, his health has deteriorated so much that he's on a bag full of drugs for neuropathy, pain, blood clots, other heart problems, and immunity concerns. His heart problems include having to have his heart shocked back into rhythm.

"I had never had a heart problem in my life," he says, "never took a heart pill in my life ... If you haven't gotten the vaccine, stand your ground. Don't get the stab. Don't do it."
