A new report by the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War organization, along with other doctor groups, takes a deep look at the body count and the physical toll that America's 'War on Terror' has exerted over the past decade. The report, titled "Body Count: Casualty Figures after 10 Years of the 'War on Terror,'" details the reported death tolls of people in Afghanistan, Iraq and Pakistan, and states the total number of deaths falls between 1.3 million and 2 million. RT's Manuel Rapalo reports.
